

The background of the entire image is a stylized illustration of a forest. It features numerous trees of different sizes and shapes, rendered in various shades of green (light green, medium green, and dark green). The trees have simplified, rounded canopies and thin brown trunks. A bright yellow, wavy line representing a path or a stream winds through the forest, starting from the bottom left and curving towards the right side of the image. The overall style is flat and graphic, typical of modern children's book illustrations.
